

Synopsis for Delivery Dadi

The story begins with a normal delivery guy doing his duty. He's shown returning to his house. We can hear him saying "aaj khana banaya ho toh fridge mei rakh dena, me bahar se parcel laya hu, mere dost ne stall lagaya hai naya." Upon hearing this the audience suspects a kid or a wife but we get to see a silhouette of an old lady walking slowly towards him. (It also can be portrayed in a comic way)

The next morning their daily routine is shown where the dadi of the character (Karan) is packing his food and he's getting ready for his day. After he leaves, the Dadi goes around doing other chores of the house such as watering plants, folding clothes etc.

Karan's friend, who opened the new food stall, comes running to Dadi to inform her about his accident. He takes her to the hospital and it is declared that Karan would not be able to walk on his feet for months. Tears roll down his face as he was the only breadwinner for both of them. Dadi was also equally sad. She read the room and decided it wasn't the time to be all sad and negative. She understood the whole process of home delivery and began working on behalf of Karan.

She went on delivering packages, accustomed with the neighborhood. She knew most of the people and was able to get a peek through the minds of today's generation. Here and there she not only delivered packages but also some life advice to people facing challenges. In a way, filling the void of a wise grandmother in their lives. She became famous for delivering not only packages but also some life advice.

The city then named her as "Delivery Dadi."
